DEPARTMENT DEFENDS WIS. CHEESE GRADES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison—Answering a published attack on the cheese grading system of Wisconsin, the state department of markets has issued a statement detailing the effects of the grading law, which it says has improved the quality of Wisconsin cheese 30 per cent, and has benefited the producer as well as the consumer.

"The grading law has been in operation since February, 1922, and is not only working smoothly but has accomplished more than was generally expected during the first year of its operation," the department said. "This is substantiated by numerous letters, statements from dealers and official agencies from all over the country.

"The Wisconsin cheese grading system has been worked out jointly by the college of agriculture, the U. S. department of agriculture and the department of markets. Its object is to improve the quality of cheese by regulating the quality of the product and stimulating production of such quality. That this object has been obtained is evidenced by signed statements of dealers to the effect that since the establishment of the grading system, the quality of Wisconsin cheese has improved 30 per cent.

"This shows clearly that the Wisconsin cheese grading law has accomplished the main object of its standardization; it has materially contributed towards improving quality. So far as any advertising plans and organizations are concerned, the department of markets is of the opinion that the basis of efficient advertising is proper standardization of products.

"With the improvement in quality of Wisconsin cheese as the result of the operation of the grading system, as a starting point, it should be fairly easy for private and co-operative agencies to develop their own brands upon which a merchandising program can be built.

"A very important question has been raised by the statements published in the press, questioning the wisdom of having only a minimum standard set for cheese. The state, it must be understood, is not and cannot be a marketing agency. It therefore sets minimum requirements which in its opinion constitute a sufficient guarantee that the consumer will pay according to quality and the producer is rewarded on the same basis."

COUNTY IS STILL THIRD IN NUMBER OF U. W. STUDENTS

Rock county this year retains its place as third in the state in the number of representatives attending the University of Wisconsin. Statistics show Dane county first with 1,902, and Milwaukee second, with 888. Rock county has 223 students at the school, while other counties in order are Grant, Winnebago, Sauk, Jefferson, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Racine, Columbia, Walworth, Douglas, La Crosse, Manitowish and Outagamie.

Statistics are being compiled and issued weekly by university officials in a drive to increase the number in the faculty, and to enlarge the campus and number of buildings. It is said that in the last decade, the faculty staff has been increased 50 per cent, while the number of students has increased 86 percent. There are now 522 teachers, while there should be 646, if the size of the faculty had kept pace with the size of the student body.

Among the 36 students who have spent the past few weeks doing practical library work in various libraries of the state are: Helen K. Dresser, Clinton; Ruth Haylett, Evansville; Edna M. Johnson, Beloit.

Lutheran Sunday School Leaders to Gather, May 27

The second annual Rock County Lutheran Sunday School convention will be held in Our Saviour's church, Beloit, Sunday afternoon, May 27.

The committee of arrangements, consisting of Pastor G. J. Muller and J. P. Hammarlund, both of Janesville, and Gustaf Hansen, Beloit, met in Beloit, Monday night, Mr. Hansen will preside at the convention.

Delegates will attend from Janesville, Edgerton, Clinton, Oronville, Luther Valley, Whitewater and Capron and Durand, Ill.

The convention last year was held in the First Lutheran church here and there were 78 delegates. The First, St. John's and St. Peter's churches of Janesville, will be represented in the 1923 convention.

TELEGRAPH FIRM TO MAKE CHANGES

Five patrons of the Janesville Electric company, including the Postal Telegraph company will be affected by the plans to change the lines from which they are receiving service from a direct current to alternating current. These customers are now receiving it from the 230 volt system, and the current has gotten through the ground back to the plant causing considerable trouble which has led to the decision to discontinue it. The Postal Telegraph repairman from Madison has been here to arrange for making changes necessary.

GREEN COUNTY CONTEST

Monroe — Students from New Glarus, Brodhead, Albany, Juda and Monroe high schools will compete in the county declamatory and oratorical contests here Thursday. The winners will go to the district meet at Plattville, May 11.

OLD POST-OFFICE PLANS RETURNED

Old plans used to construct the present postoffice, building more than 20 years ago, have been returned to Postmaster J. J. Cunningham after being used for some weeks by A. A. Packard, Chicago, government architect, who is making plans for remodeling the second floor for use, and will submit these to officials at Washington for ratification. It is thought the plans have probably been sent to Washington and it is hoped to get some word on the matter within a few weeks.

HI-Y BOYS WILL ENTERTAIN MOTHERS

Mother's will be guests of honor at the HI-Y club meeting, Wednesday night, when the annual Mother-Son program will be carried out. A supper will be served and a program of toasts given.

DATES ARE FIXED FOR GIRLS' CAMP

August 15 Set Aside for Rotar-dale's Occupancy by Y. W. C. A.

Tentative dates for the Y. W. C. A. camp at Rotar-dale are set at meeting of the camp committee this week. The camp will be available beginning August 1. The first two periods will be open to the junior high group and any other girls in the city over 11 years of age. Senior high girls will have the third period of ten days, August 18-27. Two week-end outings for business girls are planned. The first will be a two-day period, August 11 and 12. The second will be for three days, Sept. 1-3. Rates are to be $5 for the seven day period; $8 for a ten day period; $1.50 for the two-day outing; and $2.50 for the three day period. Registration dates will be announced later. The entertainment capacity will be 2.

It was expected that the community girls' work secretary would serve as camp director, but owing to the resignation of Miss Margaret Deane and the inability of the association to obtain a successor thus far, it is probable that Miss Marion Hamlen, general secretary, will be in charge of the camp. Miss Helen West, physical director, will have charge of camp recreation and swimming. Classes will be offered in nature study, first aid and camp craft.

Miss Ella Jacobson is chairman of the camp committee.

RUSH WORK ON NEW LIGHTS; READY IN MAY

Sixty-five ornamental lights will be added to the present system of the city about the middle of May providing no unforeseen contingencies arise to delay the work of installation now in full progress. Under the direction of Foreman Frank Duffy, of the Janesville Electric company, the holes for the lighting standard, 40 feet poles are being dug by Albert Hensel.

Concrete foundations for 30 of the 65 lights have been laid, and the rest should be in this week. Foundations are allowed to settle for at least 30 days before the metal standards are put in place.

About 14,000 feet of cable must be laid for connecting the lights and 1,000 feet has thus far been laid, William F. Schmiedley, general manager, said Tuesday.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Stella H. Antisdal, Milton Jct. Mrs. Stella H. Antisdal, 61, wife of George C. Antisdal, died suddenly Tuesday, from heart failure following an illness of three days. Mr. and Mrs. Antisdal lived at Afton and Janesville for many years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday, from the Seventh Day Adventist church, in Milton Junction. Brief services are to be held at the residence at 1:30. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Antisdal is survived by the following children: Mrs. E. L. Peterson, Holly, Mich.; Ernest G. Antisdal, Minneapolis; Mrs. Nels E. Laurson, Luck, Wis.; Mrs. Melvin H. Howard, Cape Haven, Minn.; Mrs. Josephine Antisdal, Janesville; Charles and William Antisdal, all of Milton Junction.

Funeral of Mrs. William Conway, La Prairie.

Funeral services for Mrs. William Conway were held at 2 p. m. Wednesday, at the home in La Prairie, The Revere.

Those who survive are his daughter, Mrs. Henry Willmann, Trinity Episcopal, officiated. Six sons were pallbearers, being John, James, Hugh, and George, all of La Prairie; Robert, Chicago; and William F. Conway, Wisconsin Rapids. Burial was in Emerald Grove.

Frank A. Luckfield, Hanover. Frank A. Luckfield, 49, died at 3:40 Tuesday afternoon at his home in Hanover, after an illness of a year.

He was born in Jersey City, N. Y., May 20, 1873, and came with his parents to Wisconsin at age eight.

He was married in 1902 to Miss Lena Olson, Merrilland, and this union was born one daughter. Mrs. Luckfield died in 1908.

Those who survive are his daughter, an aged mother; five brothers, Charles, Pasadena, Calif.; William, Hominy, Okla.; Frank H. Copan, Okla.; Ernest, Afton, and Chris Luckfield, Hanover; one sister, Celia Luckfield, Hanover.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday from the home in Hanover. Burial will be in Plymouth.

Pension Money Is Invested in Building-Loan

Twenty-two shares of stock in the Janesville Building and Loan association have been bought with municipal funds this week as follows: Firemen's pension fund, 20 shares, $2,000; police fund, 2 shares, $200; water works sinking fund, one share, $100.

The deal was engineered by Councilman J. K. Murdoch, who as president of the new council, is presiding member of the pension boards with authority to invest the money. Building and loan stock is recognized as a valid security for a sinking fund investment which will help all around.

The stock pays six percent interest semi-annually.

Although this is the first time pension money has been invested in the Janesville Building and Loan stock, in the past some local securities have been purchased in the form of street and water bonds.

Gordon Coming for M'Keever Meeting

Dr. Edgar B. Gordon, Madison, chief of the university extension bureau of community development, will be present at the "Ladies' Luncheon" to be addressed by Dr. William A. M'Keever, May 5 at 12:30 p. m. in the Y. W. C. A. here. In a letter to the Gazette, Dr. Gordon writes:

"I am extremely interested in your plan of having Dr. M'Keever come for the reason that I knew him in Kansas. It was my privilege to have a hand in the contest which Dr. M'Keever conducted in Kansas a few years ago in which Winfield won the prize of $1,000 for being the best city of the second class in which to rear children. I was chairman of the local committee at Winfield. Dr. M'Keever is a very able man and will do a great deal for the communities he comes in contact with. I shall very glad indeed to 'go down' for the luncheon on May 5."

The schedule for the series of one day community institutes to be conducted in southern Wisconsin by Dr. M'Keever is now completed as follows: Thursday, May 3, Milton and Janesville; May 4, Orono, Wis.; May 5, Madison, Wis.; May 6, Janesville, Wis.; May 7, Clinton, May 8, Janesville, May 9, Edgerton, May 10, Whitewater, May 11, Port Adkins.

EMBLEMS GIVEN TO PIONEER MEMBERS

There was 100 percent attendance at the meeting of the Pioneer club, Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. Emblems of black felt and large enough to be seen in the dark were given out. For less than 500 points in either of the four sides on which a boy is judged—physical, intellectual, religious and social—a red square is given and sewed in the square on the emblem left for it. For more than 500 points, a white square is given, and for more than 750, a blue square is given. A gold piece of felt is some definite service is performed. At Monday's meeting the regular program of Bible study and Pioneer work was carried out.

Teachers Being Paid—Miss Lydia Ziemann, clerk of the board of education, is spending $15,000 this week, but it is out of the school treasury. All city teachers are receiving their monthly pay checks.

500 Copies Planned—Nine hundred copies of the third issue of "The Reflector," high school publication, will be distributed Thursday noon. This number has been found to be right for carrying for demands, both from high school pupils and for the exchange which was started last week with a large number of Wisconsin high school and college publications.

Younger Group Meets—A Bible study of young men with Y. C. Koller of the Y. M. C. A. in charge, will hold its second meeting with Mr. Koller at 7 p. m. Wednesday, J. A.

COUNCIL BESIEGED
FOR MANAGER POST

Many Write Letters to Each—Informal Meeting, Friday Night.

Every member of the new city council of seven is being besieged by applicants for the position of city manager. Many of them are writing individual letters to each councilman while some have been here in person to talk with them informally. Councilman E. J. Barker sent out a circular letter this week to every candidate for the office, giving each the names and addresses of the new councilmen, and informing them how to apply. As a result, many formal applications are beginning to pour in.

Many applicants have asked for a copy of the municipal law under which we operate, says the clerk's letter. "I am sorry to say we have no copies for distribution but I will refer you to chapter 66 of the Wisconsin statutes. The council hires the city manager and fixes his compensation."

Who there are many rumors as to who will get the post. It is not believed the councilmen themselves as yet have any idea as to who will be selected. They recognize the seriousness of the task of getting a good man and are going to make thorough investigation of the qualifications of each candidate that may be received.

The first official step toward lining up the situation will be taken at an informal meeting, Friday night, in the manager's office. The council will meet at 8 o'clock and the whole to consider the applications on file. This, it is expected, will be only a preliminary session that will hold the council together by a number of others before a manager is finally obtained.

Librarian Asks Mothers to Guide Child's Reading

"If you want to guide your daughter in the choice of what she reads, you should begin when she is a baby," said Miss Jennie C. Polce, city librarian, at the mothers' annual mother-daughter banquet in the First Christian church, Tuesday night.

Continuing, Miss Polce urged that mothers read and tell stories to their children, and that they cultivate a taste for the best literature.

She said further, "You can't make the reading of poetry, biography or history a matter of course for your child unless you read it together. This applies also to the best fiction. Any one can read light fiction and forget what is worthwhile literature must be discussed with children in order to make it really enjoyable."

"We librarians are constantly amazed at the general lack of interest in books," she said, "and we do the best we can, but it would be far better if the mothers took a greater interest in the matter."

"The time comes in every girl's life when she simply has to read for herself," she said, "and the novel in which the lovers finally succeed in getting married and living happily ever after, is after all, true to real life, that the present-day novel is full of such sentimental and degrading accounts of marital infidelity."

Miss Mary Barker, Y. W. C. A. president, urged that comrades in "Friendship" urging that mothers and daughters seek to understand each other better so they may be real friends.

Mrs. R. H. Simpson spoke on "Comrades in the Church." Other speakers were Mrs. J. R. Payne on "Comrades in the Home" and Mrs. Margaret S. Hyde on "Comrades in Play." Mrs. George W. Allen was toastmistress.

Miss Ellen Dahley entertained with vocal numbers and Miss Jessie Foster furnished the piano solo. Miss Lillian Hensel led community singing.

The banquet was cooked and served by the ladies of the committee, of whom: John Weaver, chairman; Fred Snyder, John H. Fisher, Roy Frendahl, A. H. Baldoke, O. A. Schumacher, W. Dunphy.

The President and His Platform.

President Harding has performed the greatest service he has yet rendered to the American people, in his bold and unequivocal stand for a world court in his speech at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York. There was nothing equivocal about it. His words were a challenge to the opposition, wherever it may be, in his own party or out, and to the advocates of the moribund and unworkable League of Nations. His address makes it clear that he is not now and does not propose hereafter to be led from the straight path by collateral arguments and meretricious proposals for other means of participation in international affairs. Summoning the platforms of the republican party for the past 11 years to his support as witnesses that in his proposal for participation in a world court to act on justiciable international cases, he is heaving to no new line or following, no unsurveyed path, he also reminds us of his own utterances on the subject when he made it plain to the people of the nation in his campaign of 1920 that he would give support to an international court of justice. He then declared the difference between his policy and that of the democratic candidate in 1920 in that "one was a judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles administered without passion or prejudice. The other (the League of Nations) is an association of diplomats and politicians whose determinations are sure to be influenced by expediency and national selfishness." This was spoken in 1920 by Warren G. Harding. President Harding has not forgotten nor has he wavered in hope or faith that a time of fulfillment would come for that court in international affairs.

Let no man or woman misunderstand Mr. Harding. He is clear, plain, emphatic, that we shall never enter the League of Nations so long as he is president. "Neither by the back door, the side door, nor the cellar door," as he said to the newspaper publishers at New York. So far as the Harding administration is concerned that appears definitely settled.

On that issue the president, of the United States will find a great people behind him. Whatever of weakness there has seemed to be in the plan for a world court has come from a possibility, now cleared away, that it might lead to the United States becoming a part of the League of Nations. Warren G. Harding was elected on the platform of opposition to the league and there is no doubt about the opposition still being pronounced. On that issue he may go before the people of the country and ask for a reelection. The Bashir Bazoules of politics, the Borahs, Johnsons and La Follettes, may proceed now on whatever line they wish. They have no positive, unwavering, unquestioned policy to confront. It has been some years since we had a president who so used language as to express honest thought instead of using it to conceal thought by platitudes and high sounding phrases.

We can no more remove from Europe the war clouds and war menaces which constantly sweep over it, than we can stop tornadoes or floods. And to say that a membership in the League of Nations will bring about a change that is millennial in its results is an impossible idealism. The world court where nations voluntarily come to ask that differences be adjusted is a practical plan based on the principles of the administration of justice since the dawn of civilization.

A writer in a New York newspaper in telling of the Shakers says they "raised hens which laid eggs." This however seems to be an international habit of the hen, not confined to those owned by Shakers.

Vetoing Gasoline Tax Bills.

Governor Groesbeck, of Michigan vetoed the Michigan gasoline tax bill, which in general was like the bill now before the Wisconsin legislature with the exception that we have a more complicated system of exemptions. Now comes Governor Kendall, of Iowa, with a veto of the gasoline tax bill passed by a special session of the legislature of that state. Gasoline tax bills have been generally advocated by the highway commissioners of states for the raising of road funds this year. Governor Kendall's is among other things:

The ostensible purpose of the measure is to require those who travel the highways to contribute to its specially for their construction and maintenance. But it is not so confined. It in no sense attempts to impose a privilege tax for the use of the public roads. In its last analysis it is a sales tax. It is futile to assume that the farmer would be benefited by the bill. He in common with other owners of cars would still be compelled to pay the already heavy license taxes exacted and in addition thereto the tax on motive power exacted by this act.

Our legislature calls this a "privilege tax." It is in reality just what Governor Kendall says, a sales tax. It may have some other name but a sales tax it is because it is a tax on sales. The sponsors for the gasoline tax bill are members in great majority of the progressive party and that party is solidly arrayed against the sales tax principle, the greatest opponent being the Hon. James F. Fear, member of congress from the 10th district. Others in opposition are the Great Leader himself. How then can a progressive assembly vote for a sales tax or a progressive governor do anything but follow the examples of Governors Groesbeck on the east and Governor Kendall on the south-

CARING FOR THE JOBLESS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover and other experts on industrial conditions declare that in times of full employment like the present, business men and public officials should look ahead to the period, almost certain to follow, in which depression and unemployment will come.

Many schemes have been proposed to alleviate the hardships of unemployment but so far the United States has not taken many specific steps. The only program which the government has taken up is one of retarding public works boom times, as far as possible, and the resumption of such works when private industry is slack.

Thus, Secretary of Commerce Hoover recently wrote a letter to the president suggesting that during the next succeeding months of brisk industrial activity and full employment, public works be postponed. The federal reserve board has adopted a resolution suspending work on building of federal reserve banks, which are semi-public in nature, during the season of full private employment, and it is expected that state and municipal governments throughout the country will follow the same general program.

The theory of this is that men are employed in private industry out of the profits of business while on public works they are paid out of the public revenues. When business depression comes and profits disappear, private companies stop employing workers. Then is the time for the federal, state and municipal governments to begin building post offices, bridges, parks and such works. Also, to have the public works going on in concert with private industry tends to bring about too feverish competition for labor and material, running prices up to abnormal heights and precipitating collapse.

Such a program marks the limit to which this government has gone in taking thought for the morrow's employment. Other countries have gone further. Great Britain, having adopted a law providing for unemployment insurance.

The British act provides that workers must contribute a small weekly stipend into a general fund and that their employers also must contribute. The employer pays 4 pence per week per worker and the worker pays 3 pence per week. For women, the employer pays 3 1/2 pence and the worker, 3 pence. Boys under 18 years of age and their employers each pay 2 pence per week and girls under 18 pay only 1 1/2 pence while their employers pay 2 pence per week.

Each worker has a little pass book and stamps are affixed to these as the weekly stipends are paid. The worker retains the book showing how much has been paid in. In addition to what the employer and the worker pay, the government adds 2 pence per week for men and 1 1/2 pence per week for women with lesser amounts for boys and girls.

When the worker loses his job he is entitled to receive out of the general fund an unemployment benefit payment at the rate of 15 shillings per week for men and 12 shillings per week for women with proportionately smaller amounts for boys and girls. The worker out of employment may receive this benefit for a total of fifteen weeks out of every year.

Certain conditions must be fulfilled before the benefit can be paid. He must show that he is capable of and available for work, but that no work is obtainable. No benefit will be paid to a worker who is out of work because he has struck or who is out of work because he has lost his job through misconduct or merely because he didn't like it. A special provision of the law entitles soldiers and sailors to fifteen weeks' unemployment benefits upon discharge from the service.

The law has an endorsement provision to the effect that after 500 weekly contributions have been made to the fund the worker on reaching the age of sixty is entitled to the return of his payments with interest minus any amount he has received in the meantime in unemployment benefits.

In addition to the straight system as outlined, the law permits industries to establish their own schemes to work in cooperation with the government. A single factory or a group may work out a plan and have the support of the government in its enforcement. Inasmuch as the general scheme only provides for fifteen weeks' unemployment benefits some factories provide supplementary schemes to top up the payments after the expiration of that period or to add to them during the time it runs.

The British workmen, especially the labor union members, strongly opposed the scheme when it was proposed in parliament in 1920 but nevertheless the bill was passed. The great objection made by the workers is that the compulsory payment of the small weekly stipend into the insurance fund falls unequally on the employer and the worker. The employer, it is claimed, can get what he has to pay into the insurance fund by increasing the price of his product, but the worker is unable to adopt any such expedient. Therefore, the scheme in effect is a reduction of his wage during the period of his employment. To be sure, he gets this back, either in unemployment benefits or in endowment at the end of the period.

The trades unionists also objected that the weekly benefit of 15 shillings is not enough to support life at the present level of the cost of living. Further, the workers complained that there was discrimination against unionism. The provision that no benefits would be paid to those out of work as the result of a strike would undermine trade unionism, it was urged. The fact that the administration of the fund was not placed directly in the hands of the labor unions also was objected to by the labor leaders. They saw in it a scheme to encourage strike breaking.

There has been proposed in the state of Wisconsin a compulsory insurance scheme nearer the hearts of the labor leaders. It provides that the whole of the sum to be paid in to the insurance fund shall come from the employers, taking nothing from the workers. A similar plan has been proposed in Queensland.

Some observers and economists do not think there is as much need for unemployment insurance in the United States as in Europe because conditions of employment differ so widely. Even in the periods of depression there usually is more work at better wages in the United States than in some of the older countries in times of relative prosperity.

west and veto such an act when presented to him? But he does not even need this excuse; he can veto it on economic grounds, as an injustice to the farmer and others who also would pay another weight tax on automobiles, thus doubly taxing auto owners.

Arrest of a bootlegger with a trunk full of liquor all nicely labeled, more likely counterfeit, has with other raids and arrests caused some alarm among the handlers of illicit liquor in Janesville. The police department, freed from various influences heretofore more or less potent, will be able to enforce the laws against booze and what is more, outside a small coterie of customers of the bootleggers, will have the backing of the big percentage of the people of Janesville. A real clean-up of the moonshine chorus here would be welcomed.

The only trouble is that spring breezes rhyme with spring freezes.

Read here and there a quaint or lovely line; As men who walk together through a mine Long since deserted, so we peered in books And crannies, and said: "Here, this looks Like gold or silver or some treasure fine! Let us now claim it, make it yours and mine— Here is a thought as clear as running brook; Just two of us, we say, and yet their name Writers of old, sagacious, keen and wise; Men long since dead who live but in a name; Down from their shelves they jumped before our eyes And shared all our journeys of delight. Life brings many surprises. You can't always sometimes tell. Other day on Long Island, A school inspector was visiting. He chanced upon one school Where there was a big racket. The boys were all out of seats. And one, slightly taller than The rest, was haranguing them loudly. The inspector tired of the racket, And, picking out the largest boy, Cuffed him soundly on the head, "Hey, you, out that stuff," Yelled one of the smaller lads. "That guy is our teacher."

FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.
Paris, April 7.

Let me state that the American woman (average) is the most beautiful woman in the world. I have seen more beautiful women walk down Fifth Avenue, New York City, than I have seen at any race track around Paris. There is a magnetism—a charm of manner—about our women which cannot be beaten. The clothes with that "Paris chic" are built or designed for Spaniards, French, Armenians and others.

Let the American woman dress herself in the U. S. and she exudes that something—or, "Je ne sais quoi"—which is so pleasing.

Who's Who Today

J. R. McCARTL.
As controlling genius of the U. S. Treasury, J. R. McCartl is a virtual dictator over the various disbursing bureaus of governmental departments, with considerable more power than any of them. He has already indicated that he means to exercise his authority.

McCartl hails from McCook, Neb., the home of Senator George W. Norris. His advent in Washington was as a protégé of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. He enumerated, among the British dogs "the terrare," describing it as a "hunter of the fox and badger." He had what was called a "fox terrier." Such dogs were bred to run the fox to earth, but are now used as vermin destroyers about stables and as house pets.

The first was a volume of poems by Mrs. Anne Bradstreet, issued in 1640.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE GOLDEN RULE IN HYGIENE.
Improved sanitation has no appreciable influence upon the prevalence of smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, pneumonia or diphtheria—all of which are respiratory infections. That is, the virus germ the virus or germs lodge upon the face, lips, nose or mouth of the victim exposed, unless precautions are taken to prevent that happening. It is a fatal mistake, though one which even some sanitarians make, to imagine that respiratory infections are "air borne." They are none of them carried by air, but through the air, in the direct manner, droplet or spray infection, just mentioned. There is no evidence that any communicable disease is carried in the air. Even in the case of smallpox, an unvaccinated person would be safe in the room with the patient provided he kept outside the range of the patient's mouth spray, which is not to exceed five feet during ordinary conversation.

All of the other respiratory infections (I have listed two dozen disease conditions) are transmitted in precisely the same manner as diphtheria, smallpox and scarlet fever. This includes, of course, the least alarming, if not the least serious respiratory infection, coryza, All Greek to those who call it "cold in the head." All of the "childhood diseases," if we must confess that children have them, are spread by droplet infection, fever and whooping cough and mumps are respiratory infections. If people in general were educated to acknowledge the responsibility of infection, they would be wiser. If the professional guardians of public health were a little less enamored of the catching cold delusion and a little less fearful of what folk would say, and a little more scientific in their conception of the matter, these cruel diseases which haunt childhood would soon become as rare as typhoid fever now is in enlightened communities.

I have said repeatedly, and without contradiction by any health authority, no one can foretell what an alleged "cold" will prove to be—either a mild cold or a severe one, or a score or more of diseases I listed as respiratory infections. That being true, it is never justifiable for a person to associate with a person who is ill, or to associate with other persons unless he wears a suitable mask.

Some parents permit children with weeping colds to attend indoor gatherings where nonimmunes may be exposed.

What stage in syphilis when it breaks out in the mouth and the patient is advised to stop eating and drinking? How long should one take treatment? Is it negative to the blood test? (W. M. J.)

Answer.—Syphilis in the second or third stage may present lesions of the mouth and throat. A negative blood test is not a guarantee that the disease has been cured, but would merely corroborate the physician's opinion that the patient would not warrant the conclusion that the disease had been absolutely cured, but would merely corroborate the physician's opinion that the patient might rest from treatment for a season. Once syphilis is cured, the patient should be kept under a doctor's direction for the remainder of life. An attempt at self treatment, such as your letter implies, is a mistake. It is more than no treatment, as a general rule.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Medical Editor.

What is pruritis, the cause and is there any cure? (M. A. J.)

Answer.—Pruritis is a medical term meaning itching, irrespective of the cause.

Enough for a Whole Family.
I am ill, have always been fond of bathing, have always taken a cold bath in the morning. For 15 years have been taking a hot bath every night before going to bed, but never use soap. Get into the tub of hot water and rub all over with a stiff brush, then turn on cold water and run it up again, then get into bed and sleep fine. I feel fine, I have my vitality back. Is there anything injurious in doing what I have been doing? (A. K. B.)

Answer.—Necessarily, though it must make it tough sledding for the rest of the family—but maybe the patient is not so much worried by your heart trouble. I should suggest some other kind of exercise.

Q. How many of the dead of the war were still unidentified? R. M. D.

A. The war department says that according to the latest statistics there are 1678 unknown American dead in France and 105 unidentified. "Unidentified" refers to those who are carried on the records of the adjutant general's office as deceased for whom the graves registration division has no record of grave.

Q. Which side of a belt is run next to a pulley, the hair side or inside of the belt? E. A. M.

A. The hair or grain side of leather is run next to the pulley since it has the least coefficient of friction than the flesh side.

Q. How long have fox terriers been bred? W. C. H.

A. The earliest authentic mention of the terrier is by Mr. C. C. C. who wrote a treatise on the dog before 1572. He enumerated, among the British dogs "the terrare," describing it as a "hunter of the fox and badger." He had what was called a "fox terrier." Nature's Loveliest Gift Is The Rose

No decorative plant has been more closely identified with the home than the rose. It is an insignia alike of joy, of sorrow, of love, and of war. It is the flower beloved by all.

No garden is complete without its roses. And no other plant can be used in such a variety of ways as the rose. It is the hedge, the arbor and trellis, for the hedge, for cutting, and for other ornamental purposes.

Roses are not difficult to grow. At the time of the effort to be made will be rewarded by an abundance of wonderful blooms that will be a delight all summer long.

This bureau has for free distribution a booklet entitled "Roses for the Home." Whether you are expert, or the very beginner, you need this book. Send for your copy today. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

HARDING IN BOLD DEFENSE OF OWN LEADERSHIP STAND

upon to make good, unless he happens to be elected president and apparently no newspaperman was ever put to the test heretofore.

With this semi-humorous introduction, Mr. Harding threw off restraint and tackled the main theme of his criticism.

"You have been saying," he said, "a lot about the failure of congress, and the lack of teamwork between the executive and congress, and many of you have deplored that some strong man is not in the White House to make congress do his bidding. But a great change has taken place, vitally influencing the work of administrative and legislative fulfillment. This effectiveness is no longer influenced by war stress or presidential personality. The great change has come about unawares, and as matters of public opinion you have ignored the fundamental reason. It is the change in our political system, the rule of the primary, the drift toward pure democracy and the growing impotence of political parties."

Party Loyalty Wanes.
"We have gotten away from the representative system; we have reached a point where the lack of party loyalty has made party sponsorship in government less effective than it was. We have come to the time when party platform is regarded by too many men in public life as even less important than a scrap of paper, and groups or blocs are turned to serve group interests, and many individuals serve their own, while contempt for party conference or caucus has sent party loyalty pretty much into the discard."

This is not a new idea with Mr. Harding. He has on occasion rapped the primary just as hard, but his words didn't carry the same significance a year or so ago as they do today when he stands before the country a prospective candidate for re-nomination in 1924. He himself will encounter such opposition.

Mr. Harding's nomination through the medium of presidential preference primaries. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is certain to enter the primaries and perhaps one or two others.

For Party Expression.
Mr. Harding serves warning long in advance that the present name of party selection is inconclusive and retrogressive instead of progressive. He reiterates his faith in political parties and makes it clear that he is not advocating the abandonment of the primary, which gives every voter a voice in nominating for office and determining party policy."

But the president says he would "carefully preserve and safeguard it against the old-time abuse which impelled its adoption and I would make it an agent of indisputable party expression rather than a means of party confusion or distraction."

The movement is in full swing in several states to amend the primary laws and supplement the primary with a party convention. Mr. Harding is not alone in pointing out that nowadays in many states "party adherence is flouted, loyalty is held to be contemptible, nominations for office are often influenced by voters enrolled under an opposing party banner, and platforms are the inane utterances of expediency, influenced by nominees, rather than by advocates of principle."

In this last sentence may be found the first outbreak of indignation from the White House over the hard days when democratic and republican public primaries were captured by "radicals" and by members of the nonpartisan league, who helped to nominate and present candidates under the label republican, who confessed little sympathy with the principles of republicanism of the national party leaders and even the republican national administration itself.

The next congress will be controlled by a group of this kind of republican and Mr. Harding's battle with the product of the primary system has just begun.

His speech to the editors here is but the forerunner of the campaign plans to make this summer in his western speeches in the hope of restoring party harmony, party loyalty and regard for party platforms—a return to the normalcy of the past when democratic and republican and republican didn't mean La Follette, Brookhart, Norbeck, Ladd and the rest who have been as much nominated in Mr. Harding's opinion as from the democratic rabble as from the republican party.

Good Health Secret of Beauty
Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave telltale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes, the elastic skin and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a pallid complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, headache and mental depression are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, the most accurate remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty. Advertisement.

Girlof Ghost Mountain

By J. ALLAN DUNN

Author of "A Man to His Mate," "Rimrock Trail," "The Man Trap."

Copyright by Small, Maynard and Co. company, and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS. Peter Sheridan, young New York lawyer, ranchman, Arizona because of his ranch, is near Ghost Mountain on which he and his foreman, Red Jackson, discover a woman, though never to be a ghost. At Mielz, the nearby town, Hollister, rustler and bad man, attacks a Chinaman who is rescued by Sheridan and installed as cook at the ranch. Later Sheridan is aware that Ghost Mountain is inhabited by a young woman and a giant. He and his foreman, Red Jackson, raid the place, Peter and Red plan to rescue the women. They make their way to the cabin on the mountain and are entertained. The raiders arrive and are fed waffles by the women.

"To follow the waffles," he said. "Red, show Miss Thora how to get out of plucking." Jackson caught the tossed birds and initiated the interested Thora into how to peel a plum bird of its feathers. Mary Burrows made no remark about the shooting. Sheridan finished a little, fancying she might think him trying to show off. Presently she spoke. "I don't think I am over squeamish," she said. "And I know it is not being a pioneer, but I hate to see things killed. I eat the flesh readily enough, for I have a hearty appetite, and it shows what a humbug I am. I wish I could be content to live on fruits and honey and milk, and wheaten stuff, but I am not. I am given without loss of life. But I can't. Yet the grouse were happy a moment ago." "And they never knew what had happened to them. Perhaps it is the sight of blood?" She shook her head. "No. We come of a fighting stock. I am sure it is not that. It is because I am just a woman, I suppose."

Sheridan found that solution satisfactory. The girl went on. "My grandfather built this log-house, took up this holding. After you had gone the other night, I realized I had been talking as if you knew just how we had come here. And no one does, though seems quite the natural thing to us. Would you like to know about it?" They had reached the house and Jackson had avowed his determination of learning the art of waffling so that he might impart it to Quong. Mary Burrows slipped into the house, leaving Sheridan on the veranda to smoke and think. Life had been too vigorous the past three years for him to miss the society of women. He had enjoyed the rough but, now that he had met the girl, he realized how he had lacked the smooth. He had never met a girl like her, daring yet dainty, unconventional but still in ways he directly recognized, far more alive to the true sentiments that lie at the bottom of all conventions than the greatest precisian for feminine modesty and refinement. She was not city bred, he was sure of that. She was different—and he waited eagerly to hear her story.

When she came out, she was in a gown of blue print that had white

Worried With a Bad Back?

Is a lame, aching back keeping you miserable? Are you tormented with sharp, stabbing pains? Feel weak, tired—"all-played-out"? Then look to your kidneys for these are common signs of kidney weakness. There may be headaches and dizziness, too, with annoying bladder irregularities. Don't risk serious kidney weakness. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here's a Janesville Case
Mrs. Wm. Powell, 302 N. Pine St., says: "I had backache so badly I couldn't turn over in bed. I had dizzy headaches and could see black spots before my eyes. My kidneys acted irregularly and I felt tired and nervous. After I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Sherer's Drug Store and began using them, relief followed."

TODAY'S RECIPES
Dessert Cream.—Two bananas, one-quarter cup cream, one-half cup milk. Mash bananas to a pulp with a spoon, stir in cream and milk, pour this mixture over oatmeal or any cereal. Serves three.
Baked Omelet.—Beat well four eggs, add eight tablespoons milk, one-half teaspoon cornstarch mixed with two tablespoons water; salt to taste. Bake in greased baking dish and bake in moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot.
Stuffed Apples.—Core the necessary number of tart apples, fill the cavities with well seasoned sausage meat and bake until tender. Serve with a garnish of fried sausages and peas.
Hot Gingerbread.—Put half a pear on hot gingerbread, cut in squares, serve with hot syrup from the pears.
Fish Mould.—Dissolve one-half envelope gelatin in one-fourth cup water, add one cup cooked salad dressing and one cup salmon, tuna or any flaked fish. Add salt to taste, a dash of paprika and two tablespoons vinegar. Turn into mold and chill. Cut in slices and place in bed of lettuce leaves. Garnish with slices of lemon. This is a very tasty and a good recipe for lettuce.
Maple Tapioca.—Two cups milk, two eggs, three level tablespoons tapioca, one-half cup maple syrup, a pinch of salt, two tablespoons peanut butter. Put milk and tapioca in double boiler, cook about 10 minutes, add egg yolks well beaten, cook until it thickens the custard. Remove from heat, add maple syrup and a few drops of vanilla. Brown sugar may be substituted for syrup, but it is not nearly so delicious.

Dinner Stories

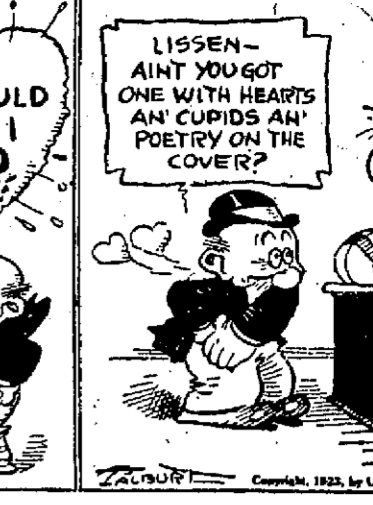

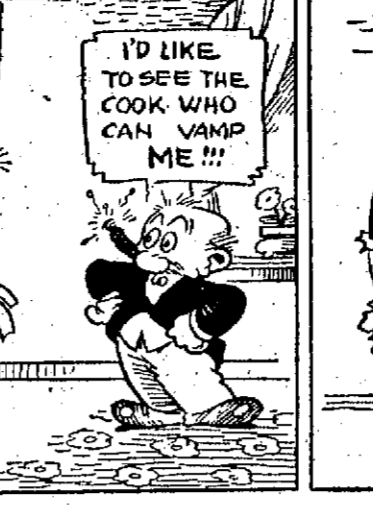

Two Irishmen were engaged to remove a piano from the fourth floor of a six-story apartment. Fat was big and husky. Mike, small and wiry. They rigged the tackle and descended to the street to lower the piano. The instrument became jammed in the window and Fat went upstairs to pry it loose, leaving Mike to tend the rope.

Fat shoved the piano out and down it went. The weight of the instrument was too much for Mike and up he came. The piano hit the ground and smashed, freeing the rope, and down came Mike.

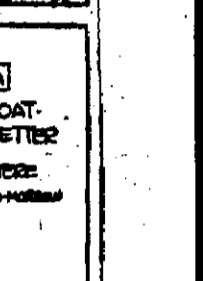

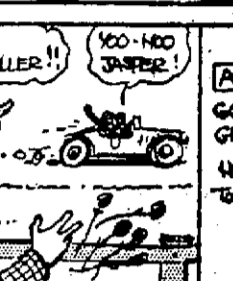

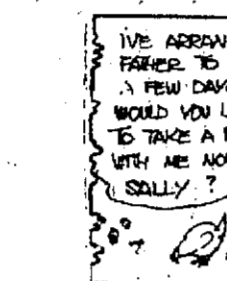

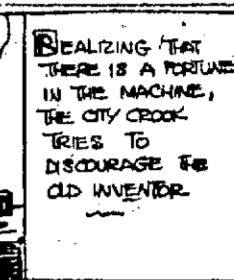

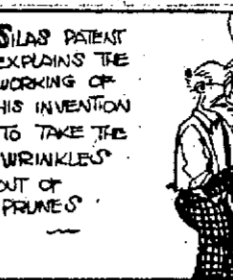

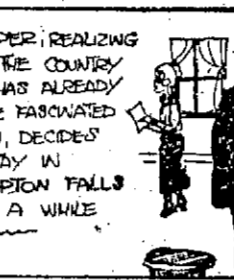

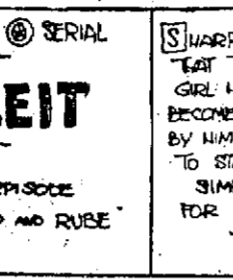

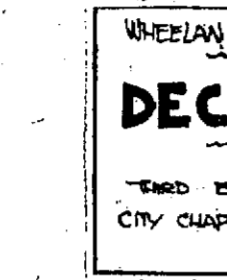

Fat rushed down stairs and found his friend lying on the ground. He shook him and said, "Oh, Mike! Spoke to yer old friend! Please do!" Mike opened his eyes and said, "Friend, nothing! I heaved yer two an' yer wudn't spake to me!" Judge.

Uncle Joe, on a visit to his brother's household, especially interested in Henry, the hopeful, says the San Francisco Chronicle: "And what are you going to be when you grow up, Henry?" he asked genially. "Well," returned Henry, thoughtfully, "after I have been a minister to please mother, and a judge to please father, I am going to be a policeman."

HEART AND HOME

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two young girls and we have been going with two foreign boys. When these boys are with us every once in a while they talk in their own tongue so that we can't understand. We don't like to have them do this. How should we tell them that we don't like it? They seem to think a lot of us and we don't want to hurt their feelings.

It really isn't polite for the boys to talk in a tongue which you cannot understand. I don't see why you feel it will be difficult to tell them that you don't like to have them do it. Doubtless they don't realize that it is annoying to you. One thing surprises me, however, and that is your lack of interest in the strange language. Shouldn't you would enjoy hearing it to see how much you could understand in time.

DOROTHY B. It would certainly be all right for you to write to the boy. I admire you for your desire to help and your mother for her broad-mindedness. Unfortunately, however, I do not know the address of the young man.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman 27 years old and have been married. I have two children. About two years ago my husband and I parted and also divorced. I have a cousin who seemed to be deeply in love with me when I was only 17 and at that time he wanted me to marry him. I told him I was too young to get married and my parents would object. He seemed to feel quite badly about it. After that I went away from home to work and fell in love with the man I married when I was 18 years old. I lived with him until two years ago when we parted.

My cousin has come to me and wants me to marry him. He is a good worker and has lots of friends and is good looking. He is 25 years old. Do you think it would be right for me to marry him? He says he has kept company with several different girls but says I am the only one he ever can love. He tells me if I don't marry him he will kill himself.

HEART-BROKEN. A physician who has been told by your husband is the only one competent to advise you whether or not it would be safe to marry. Sometimes cousins are very different in temperament and there is little danger that the children resulting from the union will be peculiar. If, however, the cousins have traits in common they will be accentuated in the children with the result that they are not normal. Decide for yourself whether you are willing to take a chance. Cousin marriages have married without bad results but many cases can be pointed out where such marriage proved unfortunate.

Marriage between first cousins is forbidden in all of the states except Alabama, California, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Kentucky, Massachusetts, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and Washington.

There are a few things, and unfortunately only a very few things, that can be done to thick ankles to make them thin. One is to reduce all over if the body is too fleshy, for extra layers of flesh have an unfortunate habit of collecting over the abdomen and over the ankles. A general reduction of the whole body is the best thing to do.

ankle, but it will make it more shape. An excellent exercise is to walk on the balls of the feet, preferably in bedroom slippers or in the stocking feet. This, incidentally, strengthens weak arches as well as weak ankles and makes the calf of the leg shapely. Another excellent thing is massage. In this case it should be as vigorous as possible. The ankles should be rubbed upwards and downwards and kneaded with the hands with as much pressure as you have strength for.

Many people believe that soaking the feet and ankles in hot water, to which a quantity of epsom salts has been added, will take off flesh. If you have any tendency to rheumatism I approve of this treatment thoroughly, but I do not think it will reduce flesh. One of the easiest and most effective treatments is to wear high shoes laced as snugly as comfortable, but not tight enough to stop circulation of the blood. The pressure and rubbing of the shoe top literally wears away this flesh.

Try the above suggestion in connection with exercise and massage, and I think you will find, unless you are much overweight, that the ankles will show an improvement with in a month's time. You may never make them as slim and beautiful as you want them, but every little will help.

Blonde.—I will be glad to mail you a formula for the lashes on receipt of a stamped address envelope.

Doublet.—Peroxide will bleach superfluous hair, but there is no certainty that it will discourage the growth.

Amateur.—You are more than 25 pounds overweight for a height of four feet one inch. Wear one-piece dresses and arrange all the lines vertically, so as to give an appearance of more height.

Mrs. William H.—The formula for the bust cannot be printed at this time. Send a stamped addressed envelope to receive the formula.

Sunshine.—If you have lines and sagging facial muscles at 17 you are run down. All necessary is to build yourself up, then all these troubles will disappear.

YOUR BABY AND MINE
By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED
Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines.
Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor. The small booklet, "Care of the Baby," may be had by sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope and asking for it.
A Reader writes: Dear Friend: I am very interested in your column. I think your advice excellent and so helpful to many mothers as well as to myself. May I ask you to oblige me with a formula for a baby 11 months old? I would like to wean him. He weighs 20 pounds, his birth weight being six pounds. Is he the average weight for his age. I feed him every 3 1/2 hours, with fruit juices in between. Will scraped apple hurt him? He sleeps out of doors every day and is very healthy. I begin to feel afraid that my readers will stop reading this column in disgust unless I print something besides formulas and diets for the child who is about to be weaned. Therefore I am going to ask you a small favor. Won't you write and send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and let me send you a new leaflet I have, which contains all the recipes and diet lists for children from seven months to two years? This leaflet will be given to any readers of this column who desire it and won't forget to send the necessary self-addressed, stamped envelope (not lost stamps). Feed the baby only every four hours now. Scraped apple won't harm him. He is the right weight. The formula for his age might be, to start, four ounces of milk and four ounces of water. One ounce of sugar in the whole day's formula. Increase slowly until the proportion is six of milk to two of water. The other foods necessary for this age will be found in the leaflet. May I think you for your appreciative words about the department? It's surprising that one never gets tired hearing nice things.

Harmon Seeking Old School as Armory for Tanks

With the expiration of the lease on the armory but three weeks away, Capt. Ralph D. Harmon, of the 32nd Cavalial tank corps has started convinced action to find a new home for that national guard unit. With the approval of the adjutant's office, he is negotiating for use of the assembly hall, which is the former principal's office, suitable for an office, and three other rooms on the same side of the hall, could easily be converted into locker, supply and social rooms, he declares.

If the idea of making the high school a memorial building, with rooms given to various city societies and organizations, the guard proposes to heat the entire building, in lieu of rent. It is estimated the cost of heating the building would be about $2,000 a year. President J. K. Jensen told the council, Monday night, he had been informed the old building may be wanted for school purposes within three years.

CROAKE SETTLEMENT.—Harry Carroll, of Marquette university, came home Friday for the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Croake's child was christened Sunday. It is named John Patrick Croake. Roy Webb and family were visitors in Albany, Sunday.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands of sufferers from constipation. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but are a healing, soothing vegetable laxative. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown motion"—black breath—a dull, tired feeling—bad headache—a torpid liver—constipation—you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

LATEST MARKET REPORT

GRAIN

Chicago Review.—Which indicates of considerable export business being done, wheat averaged a little higher in price Wednesday during the early morning. May delivery in particular. The fact that the Liverpool market showed less firmness than the majority of traders here had looked for, tended somewhat to restrain buyers. This was especially the case in the corn to the new crop. Opening prices, which ranged from 3c decline to 3c advance, with May $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2, July $1.23 1/2 to $1.24 1/2, were followed by some slight declines, and then by an advance. Subsequently the market scored additional advances. Export business was held to a minimum, but a few bushels of wheat were sold at direct negotiations between France and Germany was concluded, as follows: May $1.24 1/2 net higher, with May $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2, and July $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2.

Eastern buyers gave some strength to corn, after opening 3c off to a shade advance. May $0.90 1/2 to $0.91 1/2, July $0.89 1/2 to $0.90 1/2. The market scored gains for all deliveries.

A new high price record for the season was touched by the July delivery. Virtually no corn was being offered to arrive here. May $1.01 1/2 to $1.02 1/2, July $1.00 1/2 to $1.01 1/2.

Ons were governed by the action of corn. Prices started declining, but a few bushels of wheat were sold at direct negotiations between France and Germany was concluded, as follows: May $1.24 1/2 net higher, with May $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2, and July $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review. New York.—The confident buying which characterized the early trading was arrested when selling orders were executed in a number of industrial and specialty. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

Publication of the exceptionally favorable quarterly earnings report of the United States Steel corporation imparted general strength at the opening of Wednesday's stock market. United States Steel opened a point higher, at 10 1/2, while Sears, Roebuck and Company advanced 1/4 point to 10 1/4.

Although there were a few stocks that lost ground in the early dealings, the market was generally buoyant. The closing was strong, the late upturn which was pronounced in some of the foreign and domestic stocks.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS. Welcome to Our Grand Evening Display of Spring and Summer Ready-to-Wear. Thursday Evening April 26th From 7:30 to 9:00 O'Clock. We will have on display on our first and second floor, the largest line of Ready-to-Wear ever displayed in Southern Wisconsin, consisting of Suits, Coats, Capes, Wraps, Dresses, Skirts, Waists, Sweaters, Kimonos, Bathing Suits, Petticoats; also Children's and Infants' Dresses, Rompers, etc. No goods sold or tried on, only a display to show the people the immensity of our stock, and give them some idea of the quantity and quality of merchandise carried in Janesville at THE BIG STORE. The men are especially invited. Two orchestras, "Oscar Hoel's Melody Boys" and "The Lakota Syncopators" will add spirit to the occasion. Be sure and remember the date, Thursday Evening, April 26th, 7:30 to 9 o'clock. Everybody Will be Made Most Welcome.
